VICTORIA 2 ARSENAL1

NO, that headline is not a joke. Victoria did beat Arsenal 2-1, in the Super 6 tournament last week in Brisbane.

The Victorians, competing in the six team tournament against some of the bet players in England and in an unfamiliar format covered themselves with glory as well as winning themselves $3000 in the play-offs.

On the opening night, Thursday, they beat Arsenal in their first game, with Charlie Egan and Mike Petersen scoring.

They went down 1-4 to Manchester City in the next game the same night, with the goal coming from captain Alan Davidson.

That was when they found out just how physically demanding this six-a-side non-stop version of the game can be.

The next night, Friday, they shone again, holding English

Super 6 champions Nottingham Forest to a 2-2 draw and then beating New South Wales 3-1 in their second game.

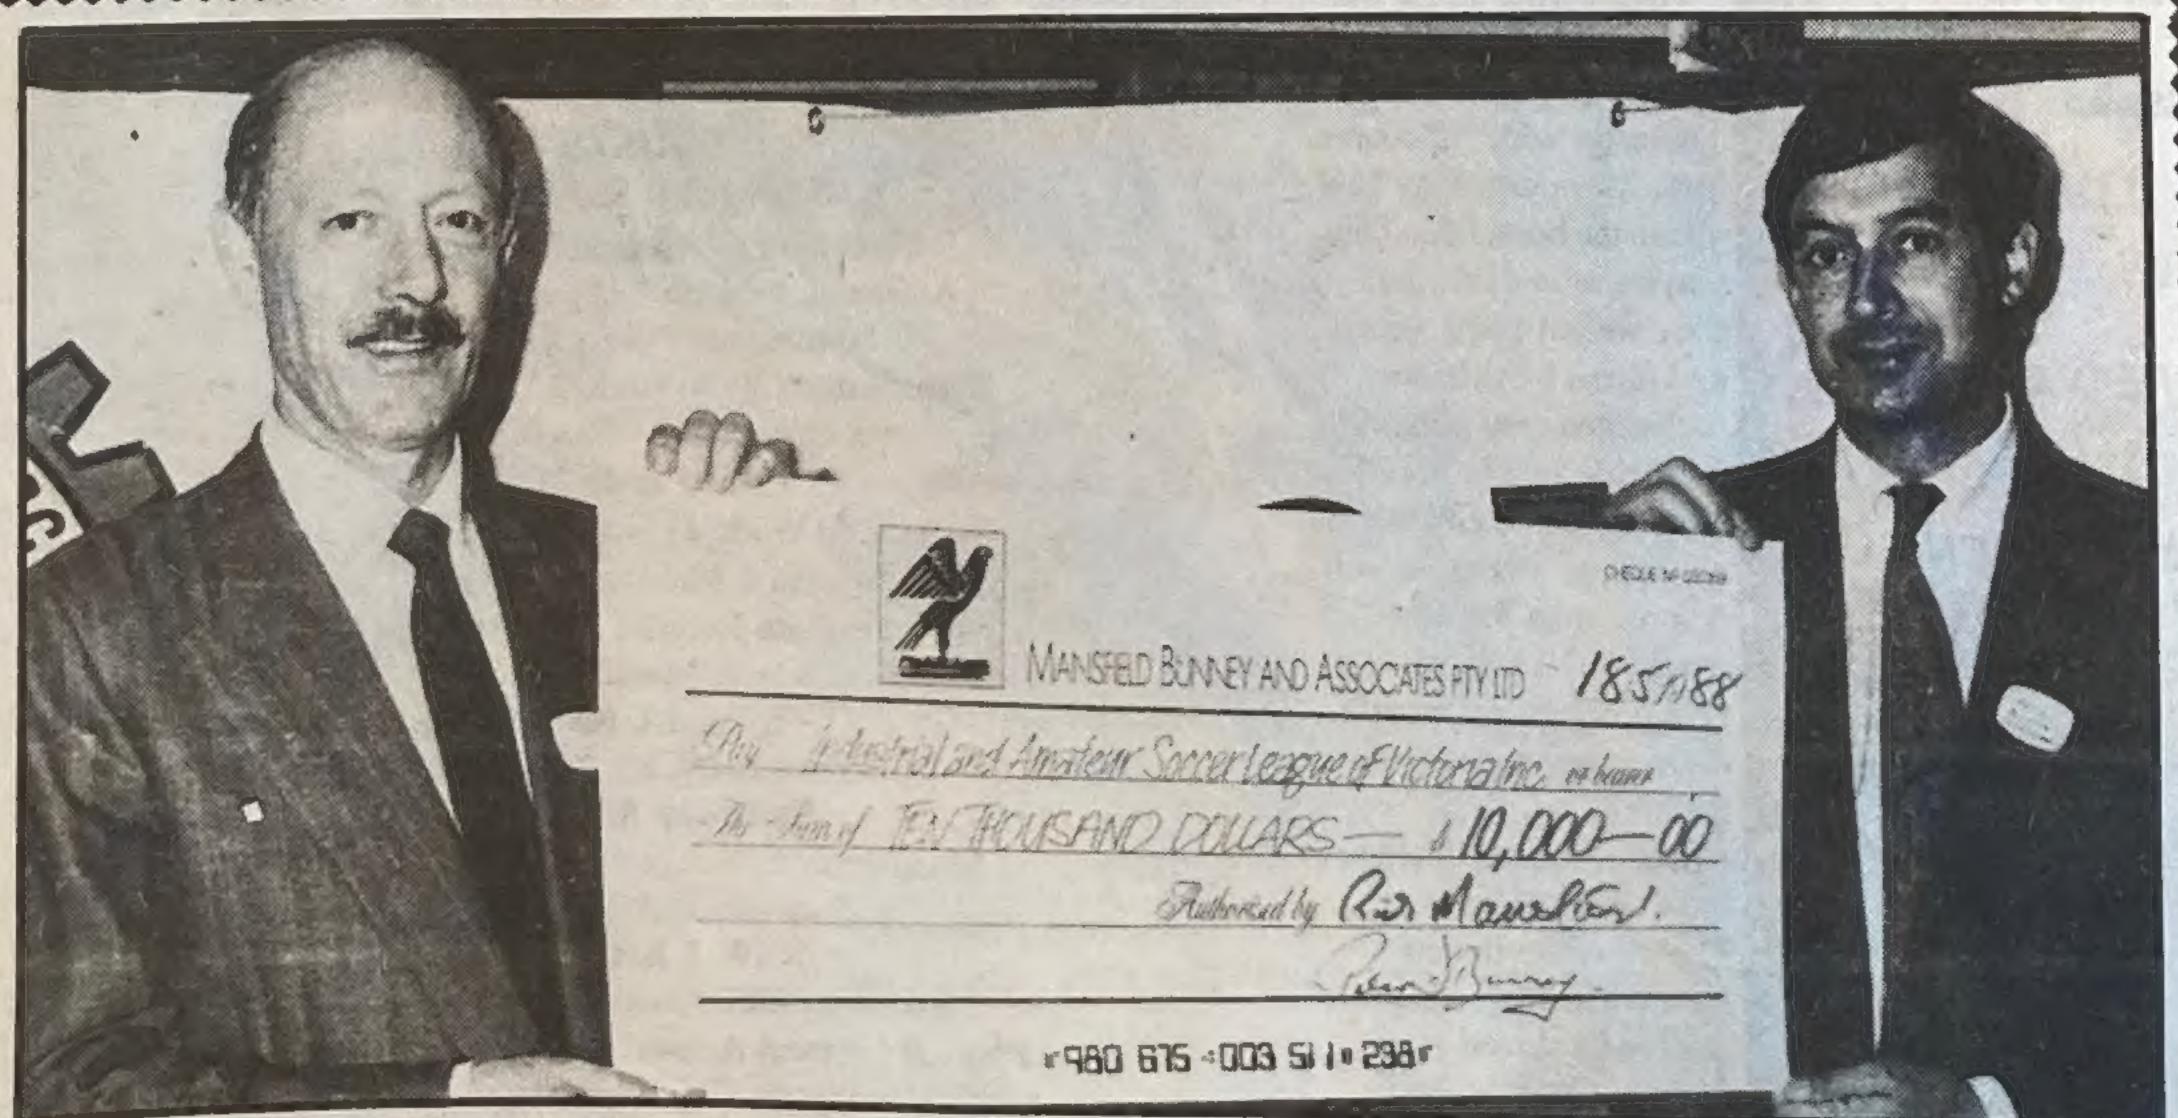

On the third and last night, a tired Victoria went down 2-0 to Queensland, but had done enough to finish in fourth place on the ladder, behind the professionals of Manchester City, Forest and Arsenal.

That earned them a play-off for third place against Arsenal, which had they won would have netted them $11,000.

But Arsenal won that encounter 2-1 with Charlie Egan finding the net again and the Vics had to be content with fourth place prize money of $3000.

Nottingham Forest, which had lost 3-2 against Manchester City in its first game on the Saturday showed its class to turn the tables in the play-off for first place and walked away with the $23,000 winners cheque.

I am moved to reconsider my opinion on the matter because of the plight of two of the State League's high-rollers.

The desperation Oakleigh and Fawkner must feel at being in the bottom six on the ladder and fully aware of the precariousness of that position has manifested itself in a chequewriting orgy which surely has their respective bank managers searching the situations vacant columns of the local press.

Oakleigh can afford to feel a little less embarrassed since its financial outlay is relatively modest compared to Fawkner's.

It recently paid South Melbourne $9000 for Carl Halford as a back-up to the less expensive Danny Ward and Alex Livingstone.

Perhaps this frugal attitude is responsible for them being at the bottom of the league There is no doubt the real star of the transfer market is Fawkner, which has acquired a certain reputation this season for enjoying the

It sacked coach Frank McAleer after only two games, but not before he had added Dean Hennessy, Robert Cullen and Kees Storm to last season's squad.

Since then, his replacement, Mike Lynn, has paid out $6000 for Scott Fraser and $8000 for Eddie Campbell and is contemplating spending another $8000 (probably) on Alex Dick, who would leave Oakleigh to sail in another leaky boat. Of course the transfer fees are only what BOB Melbourne you see on the surface. There are signing-on fees and match payments which, in some cases, would not be out of place in the National League.

Not surprisingly, the actual amount of money spent by these two clubs since the season began and they felt the first division tagging at the coat tails is unlikely to be revealed until the treasurer's report is made to the annual meeting.

But it is considerable in each case and, up to now, the rewards leave much ot be desired. Perhaps things will turn up all right in the end. It would certainly come as a huge relief if they do. But the point surely is: Is it all worth

That is not a defeatist attitude. Last season not one State League club showed any enthusiasm for the idea of winning promotion to the West End National League for the very good reason that they couldn't afford it.

His English counterpart Bobby Robson singled ou koalkeeper Jim Leighton Scotland's best player, b for Beardsley and the Liver goal for his country: "It was a marvellous individual gos For his running, brightness and work throughout the match I thought he was our best player." Scotland's performance could have been predicted by just about anyone and there was a surprise, it was that England allowed heavily-depleted opponent to get off so lightly. In view of the somewhat pragmatic team forced upon Scottish manager Andy Rox burgh, following the high number of withdrawals from his squad, not even Mr Micawber would have envisaged a way back into the game for them once Peter Beardsley struck his superb winning and Frank Gallacher came on near the end - but it says much about the overall pattern of the game that Jim Leighton was again their
